Before you begin

Make a five-petal flower with a yellow centre, white embroidered stripes, a green bud and two leaves. The finished flower is about 5 cm across, depending on your tension.

This project uses small hooks, floral wire and fabric glue. Read every component and assembly step first. Use low heat and a protective cloth if pressing yarn; follow its care instructions.

Materials and stitches

Use lace-weight yarn in light sky blue, sage green, white and mustard yellow. You will need 2 mm and 1 mm crochet hooks, a tapestry needle, floral wire, fabric glue, scissors and pliers.

Use the 2 mm hook for the yellow centre. Use the 1 mm hook for the petals, edging, green bud and leaves. Each petal is embroidered with three white stripes.

Here's what you should have so far, a flower, a bud, 2 leaves, and some floral wire (I use 3 pieces to make it sturdy). Ready to assemble!

Attach the flower and leaves

Take your floral wire and fold the top inch or so down. Use the yellow yarn tails from the flower centre to tie the flower to the bend in the wire. Use your pliers to pinch the bend and make it tight

Pass the end of the wire through the magic ring of the bud, and slide the bud right up to the flower

Start wrapping the stem and the yarn ends together using your green yarn. Add glue as you go to make it secure.

Add your leaves where you want them. I don't tie them on, just glue the base of the leaf to the wire and then wrap the yarn tightly around the base of the leaf and its yarn ends.

Finish the stem

Continue all the way to the bottom

Use glue to attach the flaps of the bud to the petals

Your flower is now complete! Use straighteners to give it a final press if you like, and bend the wire to make it sit in the position you prefer.
